

The facilitator is the retention product.

In the attrition research, one facilitator ran nine courses with zero dropouts. This is the rhythm that produces that.

BEFORE THE COHORT

Claim every man by his sign-in email from your Desk; claims cost him nothing and unlock enrollment. Confirm materials and the room: same place, same hour, every week. Invite each man directly, by name. Named invitations outperform flyers.

SESSION ONE, THE BEATS

Greet each man by name at the door. Say the price out loud: the Profile, the plan, the course, and the Certificate are free to him, always. Every man starts or reviews his Keystone Profile; his gap domain becomes his plan. Each man states one commitment. Confirm next week before anyone leaves.

THE WEEKLY RHYTHM

Open with wins; every man reports, no shame attached. Teach short; the session is for practice. Practice in pairs; men keep coming back for the men. Each man leaves with one step. Confirm attendance for next week before the room empties.

WHEN A MAN MISSES

Call him the same day. Not a text, a call. One question: what would make next week possible. Attendance recovers when absence is noticed within hours, not weeks.

THE FINAL AND THE CEREMONY

He writes the final; you read it and approve. The certificate issues with his serial. Present it in front of the room, before program exit. The ceremony is curriculum.
